

Karāpiro School is a Human Rights in Education School.

We are working together with our students, staff and community to develop a rights-respecting curriculum which realises:

Children's right to education
Children's rights in education
Children's rights through education

Developing children's rights and responsibilities at school...

Rights	Responsibilities
I have the right to come to school	I have a responsibility to make our school a safe & happy place for everyone
I have the right to play	I have a responsibility to share & care for our school property and environment
I have the right to learn	I have a responsibility to participate in my learning
I have the right to be safe	I have a responsibility to keep myself & others safe
I have right to learn about children's rights	I have a responsibility to participate in rights education
I have the right to voice my ideas & opinions about things that affect me	I have a responsibility to show respect for the opinions of others

To fulfil our goal to embed a rights-respecting curriculum would mean...

- Everyone understands that the school's purpose is to fulfil each child's right to an education that develops their personality, talents and abilities to fullest potential, and enables effective citizenship of their (local, national & global) communities, and the learning community must respect, protect and help fulfil the human rights of all.
